

Master of Education in Urban Educational Leadership

COLLEGE OF URBAN EDUCATION

36 credits

Advance as a responsive, effective leader in urban schools.

Students can gain the leadership skills and strategies essential to the unique needs of diverse schools. Our highly attuned urban education leadership program strengthens current and aspiring school administrators through culturally responsive teaching strategies that help participants empower their students intellectually, socially and emotionally.

Regular mentoring, coaching and cultural intelligence assessments will prepare program participants for real-world experiences with local, partnering school districts and offer insight into internal bias and systematic inequity.

Coursework covers creating a positive school culture, human capital management, financial management, family and community engagement, change management and strategic thinking. The master of educational leadership is aligned with national standards for educational leaders and meets Michigan Standards for Preparation of School Administrators.

This master of education in urban education leadership can equip participants for urban education leadership roles such as principal, vice principal, dean of students and more. Graduates of Davenport University's Master of Education in Urban Educational Leadership program are often promoted to serve as administrators in K-12 settings.

Experience the Davenport difference:
